A Few Comments.

Editor, Barre Daily Times: Permit me to make a few remarks concerning some conditions of the working class of people as I found them in Boston and nearby cities while sojourning there a few weeks recently, where good ablebodied men are walking the streets day after day, looking for a job, with little

I have in mind two young men who comed where I did, and for two weeks walked the streets without success. One or these walked nearly four miles for a $4-a-week job and on his arrival found more ahead of him, seeking that place. He came back very much discouraged. He had spent his last dime for a sandwich and cup of coffee. The landlady gave them a good warm break-fast and they started for Rhode Island wick in consultation with Dr. M. D. On account of feeding those warring nations, foodstuff is going up and the labor may-

A new move is on foot in Boston to build new, to give the masses employ ment. For one, I can't see the point of capitalists putting out money to build renting properties when there are some workmen who cannot pay rent now. It would only help the masons and carpenters and plumbers, and they are only a small majority of the laboring class here in New England.

ANCIENT GREEK TRAINING.

It Did For the Boy Physically and Intellectually.

The manner in which the Athenians brought up their children is worth remembering At seven years of age the Athenian lad entered the palestra, which was essentially a playground. All the first and better half of the day was spent in gymnastics, dancing, games and play. In the afternoon there were singing, some writing, some reading, all in the open air, and then came a long period of play again. Such was the schooling of the Greek lad up to headache, duliness, feverishness, sore the age of ten or eleven, and it did not differ essentially up to the age of sixteen, except in the severity of the day to see his son, Harvey Partridge,

And yet the world has not ceased to marvel at the results of the Greek education. It produced the highest type of man, physically and intellectually, that the world has ever seen, which Galton says was as far in advance of the modern Englishman as of the native African.

In physical beauty, courage and patriotism, in philosophy, literature, architecture and art, the Greeks have been the unsurpassed models of the ages and are still the inspiration of our schools today. But they placed the emphasis upon bygiene, exercise, games and play, which are too much neglected in these days. - Kansas City

THE PLANET MERCURY.

It Is Difficult to Weigh, and Its Orbit Is Very Eccentric. Though Mercury is one of the smallest of the planets, it is perhaps the most troublesome of all to the astronseen but seldem in comparison with the other great planets. Its orbit is very eccentric, and it experiences disturbances by the attraction of other bodies in a way not yet fully under-

A special difficulty has also been found in the attempt to place Mercury in the weighing scales. We can weigh the whole earth, we can weigh the sun, the moon and even Jupiter and other planets, but Mercury presents difficulties of a peculiar character. Le Verrier, however, succeeded in devising a method of weighing it. He demonstrated that our earth is attracted by this planet, and he showed of the coffee extracted. This amount how the amount of attraction may be disclosed by observations of the sun. so that from an examination of the observations he made an approximate determination of the mass of Mercury, portance from a physiological point of Le Verrier's result indicated that the weight of the planet was about the fifteenth part of the weight of the earth. In other words, if our earth was placed in a balance and fifteen globes, each equal to Mercury, were laid in the other the scales would hang evenly --

A CUP OF COFFEE.

I Has No Value as Food, but It Has a Stimulating Effect.

infusion of coffee presents practically very little material that is of direct nourishing value, says a writer in the London Tablet, but by diminishing nervous fatigue, by virtue chiefly of the caffeine present, it may increase muscular power. It is not itself a builder of tissue. The use of coffee after dinner, it is of interest to note, is justified in a large number of cases by the fact of its stimulating effect upon the vital centers, and it is said to serve to some extent as an antidote to nicohel. It is commonly claimed to remove drowsiness. As a matter of fact, in many subjects it produces drowsiness but this is usually followed by mark ed wakefulness. The practice of drinking coffee after a meal for the sake of the stimulus which is experienced has much to be said in its favor dietelically. There is no reason for supposing that coffee possesses any value as a food. The berry contains a quite important proportion of fatty substances (12 per cent average, but these are necessarily excluded from the infusion, as, owing to their insolubility, they remain
